So, you have an auto-enrolment workplace pension arrangement and have enrolled your workers into it.

The Pensions Regulator has put the ongoing governance and employee communication of a pension arrangement at the heart of its good practice guidance.

Strong governance helps ensure your pension and benefits arrangement remain appropriate and well-managed, as well as keeping your employees informed and engaged.

With automatic enrolment contribution phasing ending and minimum contributions to workplace pension schemes significantly higher than previously, good governance is increasingly coming under the microscope.

Governance of a workplace pension scheme by an employer is voluntary but is seen as best practice by the Regulator. How long will it remain voluntary?

Can you be sure that you and your employees are getting the best from your pension and benefit arrangements?
